

A Study on the Planning of Voluntary Program Accreditation

This study aimed to draw up the Voluntary Program Accreditation implementation plan by understanding the related evaluation contents of Taiwan and foreign quality assurance agencies. As the results of this study, both “commissioned program accreditation” and “program self-accreditation” are included. In order to assist HEIs to ensure self-improvement mechanism continuously and meeting the public’s demands of HEIs’ accountability, this study suggest the MOE supposed to promote related incentives. As a national accreditor of Taiwan, HEEACT can develop the related quality assurance services for specialized academic fields, and to explore the relationship within the national QA agency of Southeast Asia.