

The Second Cycle Institutional Accreditation Practices Analysis

The purpose of this study is to realize the implementation and effectiveness of the second-cycle institutional review. The research methods include literature review, questionnaire survey and expert consultation . The results of the study point out seven conclusions for further implementation and improvement ,these are, the implementation of second-cycle institutional review basically doing well, the implementation of self evaluation reveals high satisfaction, and the student opinion survey shows that the institutional review planning and practices related to the students are appropriate, the standards and indicators can add more guildlines, reconsiders the composition of the evaluators and their evaluation profession trainings, refines the on-site visit procedures and timelines , assists the universities to prepare their evaluation data and systematizes the evaluation information , and Corresponding suggestions are also made.